DOWN WITH A PARACHUTE.

A Circus Balloon Man Says It's Gentle and Not Hazardous.

"Coming down from the clouds in a parachute is like a dream," said a circus balloon artist. "Ever dream of falling from a high place? You come down, alight quietly and awake, and you're not hurt. Well, that's the parachute drop over again. No; there is no danger. A parachute can be guided readily on the down trip, but you can't steer a balloon. To guide a parachute out of harm's way a practiced hand can tilt it one way or the other, spill out air and thus work it to where you want to land or to avoid water, trees, chimneys or church spires. Circus ascensions are generally made in the evening. When the sun goes down, the wind goes down. The balloon then shoots into the air, and the parachute drops back on the circus lot or not far away. A balloon is made of 4 per cent muslin and weighs about 500 pounds. A parachute is made of 8 cent muslin.

"There is much more danger in coming down in a balloon. When it strikes the earth, it's like a big ball and bounds up again, taking you with it. Not long ago in McKeesport, Pa., I came down in a balloon because the parachute would not let go. I nearly came down in a big stack of a blast furnace, but the hot air drove the balloon away. After that I never trusted the parachute arrangement to any one, but attended to it myself.

"The rope that secures the parachute is cut with a knife. The aeronaut drops fully 100 feet before the parachute begins to fill. It must fill if you're up high enough. There are several hundred parachute men in the business, and the accidents are less in ratio than railroad casualties. A man can't shake out a parachute if it don't open. A man in the air is simply powerless. Invariably the fall is head first. When the parachute begins to fill, the descent is less rapid, and finally when the parachute has gradually filled it bulges out with a pop. Then the aeronaut climbs on to his trapeze and guides the parachute to a safe landing. In seven cases out of ten you can land back on the lot where you started from. The first performers must have had nerve to make the drop. Now it is a regular business, not considered hazardous at all. The hardest work is to bring back the balloon with a wagon. Sometimes it tears in the trees or wherever it may land when not in the open."—New York Sun.

Millions Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern in the land which is not afraid to be generous to the needy and suffering. The proprietors of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles of this great medicine; and have the satisfaction of knowing it has absolutely cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness and all diseases of the throat, chest and lungs are surely cured by it. Call on S. J. Hodgkinson, Druggist, and get a trial bottle. Regular size, 50 cents and $1. Every bottle guaranteed or price refunded.

Get Quick Action.

Cunningham & Ferguson's groceries don't get stale. They are sold too fast. This firm makes quick sales by being content with small profits.

Brave Men Fall.

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women and all feel this results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, and tired, listless run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have new lease on life." Only 50 cents at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store Every bottle guaranteed.

THE PROSPECTOR ON THE HILLS OF WASHOE.

There appears to be something out of order with the Gazette, or it would not accuse the people of telling lies about rich strikes they are making in new ore discoveries. A prospector never lies about the value of ores that are in a newly discovered ledge. He may be mistaken about values, but the fabric of untruth is not present in what he says and does in his impatience to be heard upon the values of a late discovery. The trouble with our neighbor is that it has not had any experience with mining fever. The fever of a successful prospector often makes him a little flighty, but the wickedness of a lie is not present.

Our prospectors, young and old, have had by the Gazette cold turkey served in abundance, which may be from its position of seeing things; but cold turkey with ice is not palatable when the imagination is at fever heat. When a prospector has an attack of fever over values in a recently discovered mining claim, he is like Washington with his little hatchet—he cannot lie, as he is then a very personification of truth in all its purity. He may have deceived himself about values, but he believes what he is saying.

The writer has had a few very severe attacks of prospector's fever, and knows whereof he writes when he says it is impossible for a prospector to lie when detailing the value of a new discovery. Truth, and nothing but the truth, takes full possession of mind and body when the imagination pictures a future in independence. It is the most delightful sensation ever enjoyed by a human being to be lifted suddenly out of the ranks of the poor plodder in life's weary pathway to untold thousands and opulence.

When a prospector has made a success there is suddenly thrust upon him a new character and a new relation to life. Should he be of a generous nature he will take to his bosom the poor and the unfortunate and make them happy. Should he be of a mercenary nature he will think only of himself, but does not forget to make known to all who are about him that he has become a big I; but the enjoyment he takes over the lie is equal in size to his small nature, which class of people are not often heard from in a mining excitement, as they seldom become prospectors. It is the larger nature and the more generous in disposition among the people in a community who become prospectors, and the more large and generous the nature the more sensitive it is over cold turkey when served in ice.

Keep on working, boys, as there is enough in some form for all of us, and take the chances of success or of disappointment. Should all not be as successful as each believes he will be, there is more pleasure in hope deferred than there will or can be in the bitterness that comes to those who have a green eye of jealousy which is an outgrowth of inaction and indolence.

BOSSSES DISAGREE AT PHILADELPHIA.

At this time it may not be possible to ascertain the effect the contention among the bosses at Philadelphia will have upon the future of the party. Boss Hanna is in positive opposition to Platt and Quay. Hanna is for Secretary Long or any one who can beat Roosevelt whom it is well known is opposed to the administration, which means opposition to Hanna and his methods within the party. It is not the intention of Hanna to be set aside by Platt and Quay in the present campaign, and it is certain there will be ill feeling by Platt and the followers of Quay should Hanna and his supporters succeed in defeating Roosevelt.

The war is not of the sort that brings peace to those engaged in the contention, as it includes more of feeling, than of strength in an honorable contest within the party by delegates seeking the best means for future success. When faction is prominent and leads in a contest, a better feeling is more or less present as the contention becomes animated and determined to secure success. Bosses who believe they are equally entitled to be heard and to have their particular views impressed upon the party by their adoption are not reconciled by defeat.

A personal character is given to the contest when individuals become contestants for leadership in a party, which is a source of weakness at Philadelphia, which will continue to have its effect after the convention is closed and a ticket is given to the country.

When Hanna took Roosevelt over political coals, red hot from Hanna's political furnace, he retired from the presence and silence of the governor to declare that Roosevelt was not in the fight. He recounted to the Rough rider his language and manner at Washington a few weeks ago when an emphasized request was made by him addressed to Hanna and others that he be saved from a nomination at Philadelphia, which request it was understood at the time would be made good when the time came to do so.

Roosevelt was reminded by Hanna that he was then engaged in making the request effective and intended to continue in the work. When conditions are present of a nature that brings an unpleasant reminder of former arrangements because of changed relations, it is usual that more or less bad results follow to the cause there is represented in what is included in the reminder given.

Platt says openly that McKinley is not fit to be President and it is to be presumed that Quay is of a like opinion as expressed by the New York Boss, which opinion given by Platt will be improved upon should New York's governor be defeated for a nomination to the Vice Presidency on the Republican ticket.

HAPPENINGS IN NEVADA

Pencilings and Clippings of Recent Events in the State.

Rev. Mr. McFarlane of Medina, N. Y. has been engaged to fill the pulpit at St. Peter's Church, Carson.

A satisfactory cleanup has been made at the Logan and Hully mill and cyanide plant at Como, Lyon county. The mine is showing up well.

The crushing capacity of the mill at the April Fool mine in DeLamar, Lincoln county, is to be increased to twenty stamps and later to thirty. The ore blocked out in the mine is said to be ample to keep that many stamps dropping continuously.—Silver State.

A curious freak of nature exists in the low hills just west of town. Just on the side of a certain hill is a spot where, on a quiet day, one may stand, and if he will listen a few moments he can distinctly hear the sound of a subterranean stream as it boils and tumbles among the rocks beneath the soil.—Lovelock Argus.

A Warm Race.

But two days intervene between today and the eventful date when Carson and Reno again battle for supremacy on the bicycle track. The question uppermost in the minds of lovers of good clean sport is, Who will be the victor? That is a hard question to answer. We hope that Reno will be, but we can yield the laurels with good grace if Carson wins, because we know that in that event it will have been done by hard and faithful training. We feel confident that no team can beat our boys that has not trained to the best possible shape, and from all reports the Carson boys have done so. It will be a race worth witnessing, and a good attendance is assured.

Ladies Aid Entertain.

Mrs. Spencer's lawn was brilliantly lighted last evening—not by a harvest moon—but a glaring locomotive headlight. The radiant beams—although artificial—caused a scarcity of dark corners, and young couples—but that's telling tales.

The social was a success, however, and music, mirth and feasting proved a source of amusement to the goodly crowd for several hours.

Star Gazers.

A man with a large sized telescope showed Renoites what our sister planets and heavenly constellations looked like at a near focus.

It is remarkable to discover what varied ideas people will conceive—especially about the same subject from the same point of view.

This conclusion was arrived at after hearing several opinions aired about the stellar twinklers.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

How Expresses Drop Men.
"While coming from Chicago last week," said a prominent business man to a Mail and Express reporter, "I noticed a peculiar railroad custom which interested me considerably. I happened to be in the first car of the limited when the train stopped in a desolate spot between stations. The rear brakeman, of course, dropped off and went down the track with a flag to warn any train that might be following us. In a moment or two we started up again, but minus the brakeman. I wondered at this, but was still more surprised later on to see the same thing repeated when we were obliged to stop on account of a threat of hot box. Upon inquiry I found that this was the custom on fast trains. 'Sometimes, if we have lots of time,' said the conductor, 'we whistle for the men to come in, but in most cases we leave them to be picked up by the next train or to walk to the nearest station.'

Vanity and Curiosity.
Vanity seems to spring eternal in the masculine breast, and the less it has to feed upon the more it thrives apparently.

The other day a tramp of high degree in vagrancy stopped before the window of a house at which two young women were standing. He was tattered and torn and melancholy looking to such an extent that he aroused a feeling of deep sympathy in the hearts of the maidens, who looked down upon him as he stood gazing intently at some object he held in his hand.

"I wonder what he has," said the sentimentalist one of the two as she peered down at him. "A fool of some woman's kind," I should have said."

More likely a fool, he found, he looks, piece of ragged, the practical one scornfully. She answered for a point or that you'll never find the object to her.

But it was neither they discovered. It was just a bit of looking glass in which the man was surveying his features with a satisfied air that told of his entire contentment with his very rugged physiognomy.

Which shows us that it is the beginning of the state that with sportsmen find it difficult to best just a case of disfigurement. — Baltimore News.

WAR CLAIMS
OF NEVADA

Newlands Makes an Able Argument in Support of Them.

When the Sundry Civil bill was under consideration in the Senate, Senator Stewart introduced an amendment providing for the payment of the long standing Nevada war claims which were for bounty and extra pay to the Nevada volunteers during the Civil War. The claims aggregated about $105,000 for principal and over $300,000 for interest. The bill containing this amendment went to the conferees of the Senate and House. The conferees of the House refused to agree, and reported a disagreement in the House.
Mr. Newlands, after soliciting the assistance of many Representatives and writing letters to the different members requesting their aid, stating among other things that the entire State debt of Nevada had its source in the payments made during the Civil war, moved that the House recede and concur in the Senate amendment, whereupon Mr. Moody of Massachusetts, one of the conferees, took the floor in opposition to the bill, claiming that the allowance of Nevada's claim would bring down upon the treasury the claims of all the various States that had paid bounties and extra pay.
Among them he stated that Pennsylvania had paid bounties ranging from $300 to $484, and New Jersey from $528 to $625, that his own State, Massachusetts, instead of paying bounties had paid simply extra pay.
Mr. Newlands made an able and forceful argument in support of the claim. He carefully outlined the conditions that existed on the Pacific coast at that time, showed that the soldiers were paid in greenbacks, which at that time were worth but fifty cents on the dollar; pictured the exciting times owing to the discovery of the great Comstock lode, raising as it did the price of all commodities, which were higher there than in any other State in the Union owing to the high freight rates paid for bringing the materials from California by team, showed that the pay of the soldiers, namely, thirteen dollars in greenbacks, would buy but eight dollars worth of goods, and those at such advanced prices that he in reality obtained but about five dollars worth of purchasing power from a month's salary, and claimed that the five dollars paid in gold by the State was not a bounty, as claimed by Mr. Moody and others, but an equalization of the pay of the soldier of the west with the soldier of the east. He claimed there was a precedent for this allowance in the Act of the United States government, which had for many years previous to the Civil war allowed the soldiers of the Pacific coast double pay, and the officers $50 a month extra.
Mr. Cannon, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, closed the debate. We quote quite freely from his remarks, as they show the basis of the opposition.
Now, then, upon the right of this massive bill I determined it according to my sympathy, I would say yes—a little State of 10,000 inhabitants, with its one Representative and its two Senators—it undoubtedly made this expenditure. At the same time, California, larger at that time and much larger now, made her expenditure of $4,000,000. Little Oregon made her expenditure of half a million dollars.
Large Massachusetts made her expenditure, of how much I do not know, and she paid her soldiers from her State treasury, partially, if not quite as much as they received during the Civil war from the United States treasury. Nevada has not been paid, nor has California, nor has Massachusetts, nor has Illinois, nor has any other State. My sympathies with this small State—small as to number of population—are such that perhaps if I could segregate this claim and then pass over all the similar claims to arise from every other State, amounting (I speak conservatively) to one thousand million dollars, I think I might vote for this half a million.
Mr. Newlands. I ask the gentleman not to raise specters and hobgoblins to arouse the apprehension of the House.
Mr. Cannon. I am not "raising specters."
Mr. Newlands. You said a thousand millions! That simply shows the power of your imagination.
Mr. Cannon. Not at all. Let us see. The gentleman says "don't raise specters." It is my duty, if I can, to plant my feet as a legislator, proceeding with care, guided by truth and by wisdom, because I sit here not only for Nevada, but for every other State and its inhabitants. I said a thousand millions of dollars of claims similar in principle, and now I want the gentleman's attention. This was an extra allowance—call it pay, call it bounty; call it relief, call it what you please—that was paid by Nevada.
Now let us take Massachusetts, let us take Illinois, Massachusetts paid the same extra pay and called it pay.
Many of the States paid bounties and called them bounties. Many of the States gave relief in many different ways—calling it this, that and the other—all upon the same foundation in principle.
Now, I say you may add the bounties, you may add the extra pay, you may add the relief that these various States of the north contributed; you may count the interest on these expenditures as it is counted upon this claim, and I say again, speaking conservatively, that the amount would be over rather than under one thousand million dollars. Therefore, without raising specters, I want to tell the truth, and I want to say that if we owed this money—if we had ever made similar payments to any State or to anybody—if there were a legal obligation—then we ought to pay it, whether the amount be half a million or two thousand millions. But if we do not owe it, if every State in the North had been paid under the law every cent that it is entitled to, as it has been, then I do not see that we ought to make a precedent which will bring trooping here not only California and Oregon, but New York, and Illinois, and Massachusetts, and every other State, along the line of this precedent, knocking at the doors of the treasury.

Mr. Newlands' motion to concur was lost upon final vote. After the debate many Congressmen came to Mr. Newlands and said that the only reason of their opposition to the measure was their belief that it would open up great inroads upon the treasury, that they feared the claims would come from all the different States like an avalanche. It is to be hoped that Congress will yet see the distinction pointed out by Mr. Newlands between the cases of extra pay in the east and the west.

Little Dog Dandy.

The closing event at the free shows given by the Quaker Doctors is eagerly awaited for by every man, woman and child in the assembled crowd. Little dog Dandy is the performer of this wonderful feat.
He climbs up a forty foot ladder placed in an almost vertical position; when the small platform at the pinnacle is reached, Dandy pauses, awaits the word of command from his master, —then the forty foot leap is taken, and in less than a second a flurry of black and white lands in the net held by five or six men at the bottom of the ladder.
The trick is remarkable and required months of patient training on the part of the master. Dandy is an intelligent canine, part Irish setter and part King Charles Spaniel.

Turned the Joke to Account.
Some friends once invited the late Tiny Waterman to their shooting club at Kings Lake, near St. Louis, and the first afternoon they stationed Tiny in a ducking tank, or sink box, where they well knew ducks had never been seen. He took the joke good naturedly, and that night at dinner, he pulled a shell out of his pocket and tossed it on the table with the remark that he "thought he had put all of his shells away." Most naturally one of the diners out the shell open with his pocketknife, disclosing the contents. Tiny seemed astounded at the number of "bulletts," as he called them, and asked how many were in a shell. Of course no one could enlighten him, so he said, "If you fellows who are hunters really don't know, it seems to me that it is a good betting proposition."
"Good scheme," exclaimed one of his hosts. "Let's make it a dollar each as to who guesses nearest to the actual number in the shell."
"As there is only one bet in this proposition," Tiny suggested, "let's make it $5 a corner," which was agreed to.

Each one wrote on the tablecloth his guess as to the number contained in the shell, and when the pellets were counted it was found that Tiny had guessed the exact number. He accordingly gathered in the $30, and when he had it safely bestowed he casually inquired, "What do you fellows think I was doing in that damned tank all afternoon?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Very Hostile Rest.
Adolf Menzel, the German artist, was at one time engaged on a mural decoration. He had rigged up a scaffolding in his studio, on which his model was requested to stand. For two long hours the poor "poseur" stood aloft in a most fatiguing posture. Menzel in the meantime worked at his sketch, heedless of the fact that his model was growing tired.

At length the model found it necessary to speak. "Horr professor," said he, "how about a recess?"
Menzel apologized profusely for his forgetfulness. "Certainly, certainly, my dear sir," said he. "Come down and rest yourself a bit."
The model had clambered from the scaffolding to the ladder, which led down from it to the studio floor. "Stop!" cried the artist suddenly. "That pose is fine! Don't move a muscle!"

And once more the model was forced into strained rigidity, while the enthusiastic draftsman set about sketching him.
At the end of half an hour Menzel looked up from his work. "There," said he, "that will do nicely! Get back on the scaffold. We have had our rest. Let us get back to work again."
What the model said is left to the reader's imagination.

He Took It.
While the late James H. Beard, father of Dan Beard, the artist, was painting a portrait of Zachary Taylor, he said to him, "Well, general, I suppose you are to be our next president?"
"I hope not," grunted the bluff old hero. "No military man has any business in the presidential chair, but if they offer it to me I suppose I'll be fool enough to accept it."
And he was.

Remarkable Cure of Rheumatism.
KENNA, Jackson Co., W. Va.
About three years ago my wife had an attack of rheumatism which confined her to her bed for over a month and rendered her unable to walk a step without assistance, her limbs being swollen to double their normal size. Mr. S. Maddox insisted on my using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and used it according to the directions and the next morning she walked to breakfast without assistance in any manner, and she has not had a similar attack since.—A. B. PARSONS. For sale by Wm. Pinniger.

In almost every neighborhood there is some one whose life has been saved by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, or who has been cured of chronic diarrhoea by the use of that medicine. Such persons make a point of telling of it whenever opportunity offers, hoping that it may be means of saving other lives. For sale by Wm. Pinniger.

"Quick Luncher."
It is the habit of the modern time saving young man, says Elliot Gregory in The Atlantic, upon entering a quick lunch establishment to dash for the bill of fare and give an order (if he is adroit enough to catch one of the maids on the fly) before removing either coat or hat. At least 15 seconds may be economized in this way. Once seated, the luncher falls to on anything at hand—bread, cold slaw, crackers or catchup. When the dish ordered arrives, he gets his fork into it as it appears over his shoulder and cleans the plate before the sauce makes its appearance, so that is eaten by itself or with bread.
Cups of coffee or tea go down in two swallows. Little piles of cake are cut in quarters and disappear in four mouthfuls, much after the fashion of children down the ogre's throat in the mechanical toy, mastication being either a lost art or considered a foolish waste of energy.
A really accomplished luncher can assimilate his last "quarter" of cakes, wiggle into his coat and pay his check at the desk at the same moment. The next he is down the block in pursuit of a receding trolley.
